The primary intent of the CCSF Queer Resource Center (QRC) is to provide an open, honest, and confidential haven where gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender, queer, questioning, and inter-sex (GLBTQQI) students, as well as their allies, can congregate to discuss relevant issues in a secure and healthy environment. Additionally, the QRC provides opportunities for students to create a sense of unity within the campus, develop their understanding of their community, and obtain information regarding their physical health and overall well-being. In the QRC we understand that all of us live in a multifaceted culturally diverse society, thus we recognize and respect each aspect of everyone's self-identification to a community whether you identify yourself by gender, ethnicity, nationality, socio-economic standing, sexual orientation, or any other determinant.

The QRC also works closely with CCSF's Queer Alliance Club to help sponsor and support events such as community dances, mixers, memorials, and field trips. QRC serves as an academic resource for GLBTQQI students at CCSF. Here, students receive help with academic planning, gain assistance in their pursuit of their educational, vocational, and personal goals, in addition to being provided with scholarships specifically for members of the GLBTQQI community. However the QRC is more than a resource explicitly for members of the GLBTQQI community at CCSF. The QRC opens its doors and services to all members of the CCSF community to help provide an open and accepting environment for everyone who is willing enough to be accepting of them selves and members of their academic community in our shared space.
